To Whom this may be of interest to.

We recently have completed the construction of a new home. The idea of incorporating some sola heating system into the design appealed to us. We were in the final stages of our systems investigation when we happened to meet Holger Behrendsen. Instantly we were impressed with Holgers enthusiasm for the concept of harnessing nature which prompted us to further investigate. His passion for what he does certainly convinced us to employ his expertise for our installation. His product knowledge is excellent and his experience in these systems is second to none in this country. His advice is backed up by facts and his fore mentioned experience. His confidence is well founded and he can justifiable claim to be among the best. This man actually knows what he is doing.

In our instance Holgers attention to detail has resulted in us having an efficient and tidy installation which is delivering fantastic results. Components used are top quality and we are extremely pleased with the result.

I could expand on our system installation, and how Holger has incorporated sola for domestic water, hydronic for radiator heating, underfloor heating, pool heating along with backup systems when sola is not available. It sounds complicated but Holger ensures that it is not and that it works.

Please contact me if you would require further convincing. I am more than happy to talk to you.

Project Energies know what they do and the do what they know. Holger is a professional and his passion is infectious. Besides having to pay him, it's a pleasure to have him around. The only course of action after having employed Project Energies is to recommend them.

Regards, Paul Bardoul.
